Last year, as one of the parent representative for the school council I was fortunate to participate in the planning and roll out of several collaborative events that created spaces for all of us to connect and learn. I look forward to continuing these projects and several others this year. Professionally I am a surgeon by training, and at present I am doing my PhD in Health Policy. I also teach undergraduate students at York University and have been selected for a Peel Leadership development program. My most important role however, will always be as a Mother and Mentor to my two children.
